Theater Comedy Outing – Special offer from our member Daniel Ellis

Come laugh with us at a new Broadway-bound play. The comedy My Huckleberry Friend launches here in Portland with a staged reading. Daniel Ellis, one of our members, is the playwright and he's recruited an all-star cast.

Madison (a Broadway lyricist) is a lovable and zany screwball whose life is wacky. But then she's paired with a composer who is both nerdy and a no-nonsense guy. Oops. The sparks fly. Zingers are launched. Great fun. Can the show open? Can Madison become less goofy and get to work?

Daniel has teamed with a five-time Tony Award winner as his executive producer who is opening doors on the path to Broadway. Bonus: A Q&A session afterwards means that your feedback might just make its way to Broadway.

Ellis has set aside 20 seats for us at the performance on Wednesday, April 22nd at 7:30 PM. For those who cannot make this date, other showings are on April 18th (noon); April 19th (7:30); and April 26th (5:00 PM). The venue is the 21Ten theater at 2110 SE 10th Avenue (Portland), which is about six blocks south of Hawthorne Blvd. Arrive early for parking.

Tickets for this staged reading are $20, or about half of what is charged elsewhere. Cash or checks only, please. For questions or tickets, email: DukesOfBroadway@Gmail.com
